

Be the Change you Want to See

After a long time working and studying from home, we can finally plan small outdoor gatherings, send the kids to summer camp, go for a bite at a newly installed patio and even think about where we will go once we're allowed to travel without restrictions! Let's be happy about that. Let's also remember that whatever our language, culture, nationality, skin colour, beliefs or abilities; we were all under the threat of the same virus, affected by months-long quarantine and we are all looking forward to living life as normal, safe and fair as possible. Let's work together towards an inclusive and welcoming society, proud of its diversity, respectful and protective of all its members. May we inspire others to open their hearts and minds to the differences that make each of us unique. And let us hope for change where change is needed, so there is no more place for hate and discrimination in our community.
